Death Sentence Executed on Woman in Windsor Prison---Drop Fell at 1:14 O'clock This Afternoon---Final Scene of Tragedy One of Horror.

WINDSOR, Vt., Dec. 8.—Mary Mabel Rogers was hanged here to-day for the murder of her husband, Marcus Rogers, a crime which took place a little more than three years ago.

The woman was taken to the scaffold in the prison, the black cap adjusted and the drop, fell at 1:14 o'clock.

The body of the woman swayed from the noose in the convulsions of death just thirteen minutes, the physician pronouncing her dead at 1:27 o'clock.

The early arrival of High Sheriff Peck from White River Junction, on whose face there was the gray look of despair; the later news that Governor Charles James Bell had declared with grim determination that Mary Rogers should hang; the breaking of this news to the helpless woman in her cell; the rattling up to the prison of the undertaker's wagon with the coffin that is to receive the dead body—all this added a ghastly significance to the tense situation.

Doomed Woman Hoped On

Mary Rogers, up to the time she was told that the iron-willed Governor had turned a deaf ear to the appeals that had been made in her behalf, believed that in some way she would be saved. Buoyed up with this hope, in spite of the doubt that was in the minds of her friends, which had been communicated to her, she continued to believe that the good fortune that had so far followed her in snatching her from death would at the last moment reappear and keep her from the hangman's noose.

But the officials of the jail, the matrons who came in contact with the condemned woman, had none of his optimism, and early to-day their faces went white with the thought of what they were convinced lay before them—the strangling to death of a woman.

High Sheriff Peck had gone to White River Junction to see the Governor. It was there the appeal of the lawyers for Mrs. Rogers was made and the petitions signed by thousands of women were presented to the grizzled Executive.

Sheriff Broken in Spirit

Sheriff Peck, who has worked to save the woman's life and who is physically not a strong man, did not remain at White River Junction until the decree of the Chief Magistrate was delivered. He felt that he knew it would be and he hurried back, broken in spirit.

"How are you feeling, Sheriff?" he was asked as he got off the train and started for the prison.

"Very badly, very badly," replied the sheriff in a low voice. Shortly after this the word was flashed from White River Junction that Governor Bell had finally refused to reprieve the woman, and that she must be hanged. With it came some of the facts surrounding the ineffectual efforts made in behalf of the victim of the law.

The Governor told Lawyer Edward L. Fitts, who had acted as counsel for Mrs. Rogers, that the law must take its course—that if he should grant another reprieve it would make the courts of the state ridiculous. Then when Miss Parton, the young woman from Ohio, had presented her great petition in behalf of the doomed woman, the Governor, with a harshness that was not surprising to those who have followed him in this case, informed her that he resented the intrusion of the Ohio women in the matter.

Mary Rogers showed little inclination for sleep last night, and it re-

Why Gov. Charles J. Bell Refused to Grant a Reprieve

As executive of Vermont it has been my endeavor to execute the laws of the State with justice and mercy to Mrs. Rogers. I have done all I should do for her and all I could do. If I should grant a reprieve to-day the Supreme Court would put the case right back where it was at the beginning. ANOTHER REPRIEVE WOULD MAKE THE COURTS OF VERMONT RIDICULOUS.—Statement by Governor Bell at White River Junction, Vt.

outlook some urging upon the part of the matrons to induce her to retire. She finally went to bed at 11 o'clock, much later than usual, although otherwise she did not show any outward signs of worry.

The woman very calmly told the sister world. It was decided that it would be of death hung her dead like a child until last to tell her the news that had by this time come from the Governor, and it was indicated by any means of the world of death.

When she came Mrs. Rogers went to a window and looked out the last morning on which she was to look upon the earth. The scene of rain and somber sky that she was used to look upon was hidden by a blanket of fog. Again and again she went to the window, and it was not until a few minutes after seven that the sun suddenly appeared.

At that moment the last hope. In the eyes of the sun, and almost immediately the frost was eaten up, and all the prisoners were free. What she saw Rogers stood at her window and looked out. At that moment the last hope. Breakfast was served and Mrs. Rogers sat with her head upon the wall, and she was not in a chair and walked to the window and looked out upon the dead woman who was to be taken away after the rope had done its work.

Full details of the execution of Mrs. Rogers will be printed in an edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN to be issued immediately.

THE THINKING MACHINE

Local Theatres Recognize Popularity of Boston American Mystery Stories.

"The Thinking Machine" has made its reputation upon the stage. In two of the local theatres the great popularity of "The Thinking Machine Mystery," Jacques Franke's play story of the Boston American has been recognized, and announced to be introduced as a part of the play.

Man and Mrs. Rogers, German comedians, who are now playing at the Colonial Theatre in the "Bosnian Mystery" in Ireland, make "The Thinking Machine" the subject for one of their jokes.

They are reading the rules for passing on the subject of the "Thinking Machine" to the audience. The play is a comedy, and the audience is asked to pass on the subject of the "Thinking Machine" to the audience.

"The Thinking Machine" is the man who can do everything that does happen, the response.

It is a play of the life of the man with the large audience which, slightly changed, makes the Colonial Theatre, a part of the play.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH A NICE VACATION

Don't Do It By Starving It Either—Let A Substitute Do The Work.

The old adage, "Eat work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," applies just as well to the stomach, one of the most important organs of the human system, as it does to the man himself. If your stomach is worn out and refuses anything being asked beyond its limit, the only sensible thing you can do is to give it a rest. Emptying the stomach for a short time and see if it will not more than repay you in results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a willful and most efficient substitute. They themselves digest every bit of food in the stomach in just the same way that the stomach itself would, were it well. They contain all the essential elements that the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach contain and actually act just the same and do just the same work as the natural fluids would do, were the stomach well and round. They relieve, relieve the stomach, but as one workman relieves another, and permit it to rest and recuperate, and return to its normal health and strength.

This "vacation" idea was suggested by the letter carrier, a prominent man in Chicago. Read what he says: "I was engaged in the business of a letter carrier, and my work was very critical time my stomach went completely blank on me. My mental strain brought it about and hurried up what would have happened later on."

"What I ate I had to literally force down, and I was forced to eat. I had a four stomach much of the time. My head ached, I was sluggish and long to long my ambition to carry out my undertaking. It looked pretty gloomy for me and I confided my plight to one of my clients. He had been cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and at once wrote me a letter of recommendation. I took a box of Stuart's Tablets and brought a box up to the office."

"I had taken a quarter of that box before I found that my work with my stomach was all right. I was able to do my work and at once wrote me a letter of recommendation. I took a box of Stuart's Tablets and brought a box up to the office."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box.

HARVARD TO ABOLISH FOOTBALL?

Are Harvard students going to wake some time including and find that they can play football any more?

This is a question that is steadily on the minds these days of all the students who cluster about the Cambridge institution of learning. There has been no authorized statement from any Harvard men that any definite action has been contemplated by Harvard. In regard to the football question, it has been reported that the President of Harvard has denied that Mr. Story has said that the Board of Overseers of Harvard were going to step in and put a stop to the game. Mr. Story, the President of Harvard, himself has denied that Mr. Story made any such statement.

President Elliot has stated that he would not take any action on the question of football; that if Harvard did anything that matter the action should come from the student body. He has expressed his sentiment among the most prominent members of the faculty at Harvard is against football as played at Harvard.

The excessive importance attached to the game of football at Harvard during the night after the paralyzation of all educational college activities, with the phraseology of the President, "the game is the thing," make practically all the members of the faculty and the student body, regardless of the game, Bill Hold and the Harvard organization, feel that it is their duty to secure this kind of diverse opinion setting forth the reasons for the same.

He wrote his public letter to Mr. Meade of the Graduate Athletic Committee before he stated that unless there was a very definite and decided opinion in favor of the game, he would not take any action. He was already determined by the public.

steps, but you ask the four to leave and wait, then say, "Well, I'll wait a few minutes longer. When the few minutes are up, I'll come back and see if you're still here." Suddenly you pipe the ticker and find the four still waiting.

The poor riders don't seem to know what this means. That's how Moran, the first to get up, says, "I don't know, Jim." He rides on after another five minutes, and then says, "I don't know, Jim," and grinning so that the gold tooth shows, he says, "I'll wait a few minutes longer."

It's a long time before the crowd becomes, but the four of the crowd wait and popular with the gallery, his name, Terry McArthur took all the time. Moran says, "I'll wait a few minutes longer, but he has a serious pump most of the CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The lun has been put on all holding by the chief of police and the city's two largest outdoor tennis courts, there were no spectators, either amateur or professional.

"Not only the Battery D, but the Club D and the Battery C, were not allowed to have to stop boxing," said Chief O'Brien.

The Battery D Club had planned to run a series of amateur boxing matches, but received word that they would not be permitted. Admittedly, he was charged with the duty of preventing the boxing, but when the management wanted to run the matches, he was not allowed to.

Illinois A. C. was given permission to run an amateur show, the tickets to be sold at 50 cents and 10 cents.

But they violated the spirit and the letter of the law and the authorities expressed their disapproval of the action taken at their previous meeting and the referee was not to allow them to take place.

The referee, Intendant, was between men or clubs. He refused that the referee was to be between men and between men and women boxing and will enforce the law.

The action of the Chicago police is a surprise to the boxing community. It questioned the plan to send a team of men to the United States to compete in the amateur boxing tournament in Chicago A. A. an arrangement had been made for the purpose.

A dispatch from the World City Mayor's office says that the city's boxing will be pulled out, though the Mayor said that the city's boxing will be pulled out.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 8—Manager Ted Kubiak of the Yale football team finds that the receipts from the Yale football games this Fall will be the biggest in the school's history. From the three games played so far, $300,000 has been received.

The exact totals are not available, but from the Yale-Columbia game, Yale will get about 20,000, or about 6,000 tickets were sold at $22 each. Yale and Columbia met last week at New Haven, where Yale-Princeton gave about 29,744 seats, and Yale-Harvard gave about 33,000 seats. At the Yale-Harvard game 43,000 fans showed up, and the total ticket sale was a total of 73,244 seats for the three games.

He played right half-back his freshman year at Amherst and left half-back his sophomore year. This season he has played in every game either as left half-back or as full-back.

The Greatest $15 Suit and Overcoat Sale

We Have Ever Held in Our Men's Clothing Department

We shall at that time have spread out on the tables over a thousand garments for your inspection—superb gray Worsted Suits, fancy patterns; black soft-finish goods; double-and-twist materials. New lapels, correct length, rich linings. The Overcoats are of two sorts—long, fancy great coats and medium lengths. Black and Oxford Meltons and velour-finish heavy overcoatings. Serge and Venetian linings, satin sleeves, silk-velvet collars.

A "Hit" Between a Manufacturer and His Customer—We Step Into the Breach

One of the best known conservative makers of fine clothing had contracted for these Suits and Overcoats for November fifteenth delivery. Over a thousand garments—to be exact, 612 suits and 438 overcoats. The shipments were nearly two weeks late. The dealer refused to accept the goods, saying he had wished them for Thanksgiving $22 sale. The makers were angry—the dealer stubborn; result, we bought the lot, and will sell them at $15 each, beginning Saturday morning at Nine O'clock.

If we know anything about clothing, these suits and overcoats stand on the books of the man who made them as a decided loss, but better for him than a law-suit at that. They are the greatest values we have seen this year, or you either. They were special values for a $22 sale, and now you can buy them for $15—scarcely a week out of the tailor's hands. Choice, new patterns, latest cut, style in every line of them. Such garments as the business and professional man might be proud to wear. Every garment bore the badge of clothing aristocracy, but there is no stipulation. The maker said if we sacrificed these suits and overcoats at $15 we must take off his name and labels. We have done that. It doesn't change the intrinsic value of the goods; it doesn't rob the clothes of one atom of their quality and distinction. The man who has an eye for style knows in a moment that these are no ordinary product. What do you care for the name if you get the finest clothes you ever wore for $15?

This is a rare occasion for the man who has not supplied himself with new clothing. Or, if you wish to add variety to your ward-robe, if you have a gray suit and would like a black one—or vice versa; if you have a medium-length overcoat and for a change would like a long, fancy belt-coat, or the other way round, don't fail to come Saturday to this great sale of

The House Coat or Bath Robe for Men Folks Will Suit Best if Bought at "White's"

Just the kind of a House Coat or Bath Robe men buy for themselves, and we sell thousands of them every Christmas for gifts. No gift is more acceptable to any man than a comfortable, serviceable House Coat, and it is sometimes hinted by shrewd buyers—that they help keep the men home evenings. And you know how a House Coat "saves" the street coat. And what could be a better gift for this cold weather than a long, loose, easy put on and off Bath Robe.

The House Coats are tailored, not merely sewed—they fit right—and are comfortable whether you lie down or move around—They are warm and dressy, and our big $5.00 leader is only one of many styles—These $5.00 House Coats usually sell for $6.00 to $7.00.

The Bath Robes are equally well made and equally well received by most any man—Of course they are luxuries, and nine men out of ten would never have one if it were not given to him. That's what makes them such nice gifts—You'd expect to pay $2 to $3 more for these $5.00 Bath Robes.
